

CPower named a Global Cleantech 100 clean technology company

Recognized by the Guardian and Cleantech Group for potential and likelihood to achieve high growth and high market impact

NEW YORK – September 9, 2009 – CPower, Inc. (www.cpowered.com), a leading energy management and demand response firm, today announced it has been named a Global Cleantech 100 company by Guardian News and Media and Cleantech Group™, LLC, providers of leading research, events and advisory services for the cleantech ecosystem.

The Global Cleantech 100 is the first ever list highlighting the most promising private clean technology companies around the world. Supported by the Carbon Trust, the Global Cleantech 100 recognises companies at the forefront of cleantech innovation offering solutions to some of the world's most pressing environmental challenges.

The final list represents the collective opinion of hundreds of leading experts from cleantech innovation and venture capital companies in EMEA, North America, India and China, combined with the specific input of an expert panel of 35, drawn from well-respected organisations such as Altira Group, Crossover Advisors, Deloitte, Emerald Technology Ventures, Google, Kleiner Perkins Caulfield & Byers, New York Stock Exchange, NGEN Partners, Nth Power, New Enterprise Associates, Sterling Communications, Tsing Capital and Vantage Point Venture Partners.

The panel's views were combined with insights from the Cleantech Network™, the de facto industry association of international clean technology investors, entrepreneurs, large corporations and other industry insiders. Some 3,500 companies were nominated/considered.

"The first ever Global Cleantech 100 shines a spotlight on which companies and which technology areas the global innovation community is most excited about from a commercial standpoint," said Richard Youngman, managing partner at Cleantech Group.

"We are thrilled to be recognized by Cleantech Group as one of the most promising companies in the world in addressing our collective energy and environmental challenges," said Gary Fromer, CEO of CPower. "We are proud that our focus on providing real value in full alignment with our clients and business partners in delivering demand response and energy efficiency results is making a high-value impact. We look forward to continuing our efforts to deliver collaborative energy management programs that create a smarter, more sustainable future."

CPower and other winners are being honoured today at Cleantech Forum XXIII in Boston, 8-10 September 2009 (www.cleantech.com/bostonforum) and will be celebrated at Cleantech Forum XXIV in Delhi, 15-16 October 2009 (www.cleantech.com/delhiforum) and at the Guardian's UK Cleantech Summit in London on 23 November 2009 (guardian.co.uk/cleantechsummit).

Recognized for its unique and innovative energy management and demand response services, CPower enables medium to large energy users to maximize the value of their energy reduction efforts and earn market payments for those reductions. As an industry pioneer that has grown into one of the largest energy management firms, CPower combines an understanding of energy management technologies, energy markets and the daily challenges of facility operators to monetize the value of energy sustainability.

More than half (56) of the companies listed on the Global Cleantech 100 are headquartered in North America, while European firms make up 36 percent. Five firms are based in Israel and three in India.

The full list of Global Cleantech 100 firms is available on the Guardian (guardian.co.uk/globalcleantech100) and Cleantech Group (cleantech.com/news/awards/globalcleantech100) websites.
